1985 Easter Seal Telethon Host And Ambassador Family

The Washington Easter Seal Society experienced record demand last year for many service programs for people with disabilities.

From 8 p.m. on Saturday, March 30, until 4 p.m. Sunday, March 31, Easter Seals will hold its annual 20-hour Telethon to raise funds enabling it to continue serving disabled Washington residents.

The Telethon is broadcast on KCPQ Channel 13 throughout the Puget Sound region. Last year, over $323,000 was generated during the Telethon in Pacific Northwest, which allowed the Society to provide assistance to over 10,500 people in 1984.

Pat Boone and Donna Mills will host the national broadcast emanating from Hollywood. Local segments will be featured every hour, originating from the Telethon site at the Seattle Marriott Hotel at Sea-Tac.

Cherry Boone O'Neill, Pat's oldest daughter and a resident of Bothell, Wash., will return as a local Telethon host with Ichabod Caine, morning personality on KMPS AM/FM, Keitha Mashaw, evening sports anchor for the KCPQ news team, and Art Pederson, of Seattle.

The Rodney Van Ginkle family of Issaquah, Wash., is Easter Seal's Ambassador Family during 1985. Six-year-old Laethe is disabled by cerebral palsy and receives weekly occupational therapy at the Easter Seal Children's Clinic and Preschool. Laetha will assist in representing the Society to Telethon viewers.

Over 97¢ of each dollar donated to Easter Seals remains in Washington to provide assistance to people of all ages and disabilities. Easter Seal programs include the provision of adaptive equipment; information and referral to special community programs; location of accessible, affordable housing; two barrier-free therapeutic and recreational facilities; the Dental Access Program; the Disability Law Program; the Children's Clinic and Preschool; and the ACCESSABILITIES Unit, helping to eliminate barriers in the built environment.

The 1985 Easter Seal Telethon hosts share in a "celebration of hope" with Easter Seal Ambassadors, the Rodney Van Gindle family of Issaquash, Washington. Cape Town Police Arrest Two Clerics.

South African police officers arresting demonstrators yesterday in Cape Town as they tried to march toward Parliament. The demonstrators were protesting the killing by the police last Thursday of at least 19 blacks.

JOHANNESBURG - The South African police arrested two leading anti-apartheid churchmen in Cape Town as the clerics knelt on the pavement singing "Onward Christian Soldiers "

The arrest came at the start of an impromptu march on parliament to protest the killing by the police of at least 19 black people last Thursday at Langa township. Those arrested and held for about six hours included the Rev. Allan Boesak, president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, and the Rev. Beyers Naude, General Secretary of the South African Council of Churches.

The catch - all Internal Security Act forbids any outdoor meeting, and specifically marches or demonstration near the pillared white parliament building that house two of South Africa's three, racially separated Legislative Chambers. There is no chamber for representatives of the 23 million black majority who do not have a vote in South Africa.

Reagan

WASHINGTON - The House of Representatives gave President Reagan a narrow but significant triumph tonight when it voted 219 to 213 to release $1.5 billion earmarked for the purchase of 21 additional MX missiles.

Sixty-one Democrats brushed aside the arguments of their party leaders and joined 158 Republicans in forming the winning margin.

HAVE YOU BELIEVE OUR REPORT?

SERIES #47

ISAIAH 53: 1&2

Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

For he shall grow up before him as a root out of dry ground.

He hath no form nor comiliness: and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

PSALM 35

Plead my cause, O LORD, with them that strive with me: fight against them that fight against me.

Take hold of shield and buckler, and stand up for mine help.

Draw out also the spear, and stop the way against them that persecute me: say unto my soul, I am thy salvation.

Let them be confounded and put to shame that seek after my soul: let them be turned back and brought to confusion that devise my hurt.

Let them be as chaff before the wind: and let the angel of the LORD chase them.

Let their way be dark and slippery and let the angel of the LORD persecute them

For without cause have they hid for me their net in a pit, which without cause they have digged for my soul.

Let destruction come upon him at unawares; and let his net that he hath hid catch himself: into that very destruction let him fall.

And my soul shall be joyful in the LORD: it shall rejoice in his salvation.

All my bones shall say, LORD, who is like unto thee, which deliverest the poor from him that is too strong for him, yea, the poor and the needy from him that spoileth him?

False witnesses did rise up; they laid to my charge things that I knew not.

They rewarded me evil for good to the spoiling of my soul.

But as for me, when they were sick, my clothing was sackcoth: I humbled my soul with fasting; and my prayer returned into mine own bosom.

I behaved myself as though he had been my friend or brother: I bowed down heavily, as one that mourneth for his mother.

But in mine adversity they rejoiced, and gathered themselves together: yea, the abjects gathered themselves together against me, and I knew it not; they did tear me, and ceased not:

With hypocritical mockers in feasts, they gnashed upon me with their teeth.

Lord, how long wilt thou look on? rescue my soul from their destructions, my darling from the lions.

I will give thee thanks in the great congregation: I will praise thee among much people.

Let not them that are mine enemies wrongfully rejoice over me: neither let them wink with the eye that hate me without a cause.

For they speak not peace: but they devise deceitful matters against them that are quiet in the land.

Yea, they opened their mouth wide against me, and said, Aha, aha, our eye hath seen it.

This thou hast seen, O LORD: keep not silence: O LORD, be not far from me.

Stir up thyself, and awake to my judgment, even unto my cause, my God and my Lord

Judge me, O LORD my God, according to thy righteousness; and let them not rejoice over me.

Let them not say in their hearts, Ah, so would we have it: let them not say, We have swallowed him up.

Let them be ashamed and brought to confusion together that rejoice at mine hurt: let them be clothed with shame and dishonour that magnify themselves against me.

Confidence

Confidence is an assurance of mind or firm belief in the trustworthiness of another, or in the truth and reality of a fact. It is trust and reliance. It is usually followed by the word in.

Example: Confidence in God.

It is also reliance in one's own abilities or fortune, or circumstances. It is also belief in one's own competency; self-reliance and assurance.

Example: Confidence in self.

IT COULDN'T BE DONE

"Why are you bothering yourselves with a kitting machine?" asked Ari Davis of Boston, a manufacturer of instruments. "Why don't you make a sewing machine?"

That question was heard, by a young man named Elias Howe who was only 20 years old. No one took the young man seriously, but the thought of a sewing machine haunted him night and day. He finally resolved to produce one. With almost insane devotion, we are told that he worked night and day, convinced that it could be done. He and his family nearly starved. His father helped him. Friends helped him. And in July, 1845, the machine was completed and proved its practicability by sewing the seams of two suits of woolen cloth. This machine would sew 300 stitches a minute and was nearly perfect in mechanism.

There is not a scientific invention that has not had behind it the conviction in someone's soul that it could be done.

Somebody said that it couldn't be done,
But he with a chuckle replied,
That "maybe it couldn't", but he would be one
Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried.

So he buckled right in with the trace of a grin
On his face. If he worried he hid it.
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it.

Somebody scoffed: "Oh, you'll never do that;
At least no one ever has done it";
But he took off his coat and he took off his hat,
And the first thing we knew he'd begun it.
With a lift of his chin and a bit of a grin,
Without any doubting or quiddit,
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it.

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done,
There are thousands to prophesy failure;
There are thousands to point out to you one by one,
The dangers that wait to assail you.
But just buckle in with a bit of a grin,
Just take off your coat and go to it;
Just start to sing as you tackle the thing
That "cannot be done", and you'll do it.

DIVIDED SOUL

AN INTIMATE AND REVEALING BIOGRAPHY

OF MARVIN GAYE

DIVIDED SOUL - DAVID RITZ

In 1979, David Ritz met Marvin Gaye and initiated research on the singer's life. In a series of extraordinary interviews which spanned five years, Ritz elicited Gaye's deepest thoughts on his life and music. Gaye was uncompromisingly candid, detaining his trobled relationship with his father, his sexual complexes, his fears and his strengths as one of the most fascinating figures in the history of American pop.

DIVIDED SOUL: THE LIFE OF MARVIN GAYE is the result, though, of more than those shocking interviews. Ritz' research included talks with Gaye's family, including his mother and father, his friends and colleagues. Even beyond his role as biographer, Ritz became a friend of Gaye's -- in the studio, on the road -- and a collaborator as well. Together they wrote the lyrics to Gaye's huge comeback hit, "Sexual Healing."

DIVIDED SOUL is an epic tale in which the sensational story of Motown and its dazzling arrayb of characters -- Diana Ross, Stevie Wonder, Berry Gordy, Smokey Robinson, the Jacksons -- are seen in a new and revealing light.

With the speed of a fast-paced novel, Gaye's tale is told in uncompromising terms. It is a story of child abuse, of a remarkable rise from the slums of Washington, D.C. to ;the top of the pop world, a roller-coaster ride whose highs and lows made newspaper headlines for over twenty years.

For the first time, DIVIDED SOUL takes us beyond those headlines, giving us an inside glimpse into the heart, mind, and soul of this enormously appealing personality, this man whose music contained all the contradictions -- the sensousness and sanctity -- of the whirlwind life he led.

EXCLUSIVE REVELATIONS FROM DIVIDED SOUL:

* The real causes of Gaye's murder at the hand of his father
* Marvin's agonized childhood in which he was beaten by his father
* Gaye's fear of inheriting his father's eccentric sexual behavior
* The drama of the early Motown days, the successes and the rivalries
* Marvin's on going battle with cocaine, his attempts at suicide
* His two stormy, sometimes violent marriages
* Revealing information -- given by Marvin himself -- on the origins of all his major compositions
* Discussion of Gay'e unreleased X-rated songs
* Gaye's claim that in his final album with Tammi Terrell, Tami was too sick to sing, and that her voice was imitated by Valerie Simpson of Ashford and Simpson
* A full explanation -- the first ever -- of the facts surrounding Gaye's snub of Princess Margaret, an event which made world-wide headlines
* The first in-depth portrait of the mysterious Berry Gordy (Gaye's broyther-in-law)
* The first detailed account of Gaye's bizarre three-year exile in Hawaii and Europe, his triumphant comeback and his final, tragic fall

PHILIPPIANS 3

Finally, my brethren, rejoice in the Lord. To write the same things to you, to me indeed is not grievous;, but for you it is safe.

Beware of dogs, beware of evil workers, beware of the concision.

For we are the circumcision, which worship God in the spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh.

Though I might also have confidence in the flesh. If any other man thinketh that h hath whereof he might trust in the flesh, I more:

Circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of enjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews; as touching the law, a Pharisee;

Concerning zeal, persecuting the church; touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless.

But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ.

Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus

We welcome news of your church and civic events.

Heart Answers

WHAT IS HARDENING OF THE ARTERIES?

A common form of hardening of the arteries is atherosclerosis. It occurs when fatty deposits in the bloodstream build up on the inner walls of the arteries. People who have atherosclerosis are more likely to suffer a heart attack or stroke. The risk of developing atherosclerosis can be reduced by observing a diet low in saturated fats and cholesterol. Contact your local American Heart Association for more information.

Hypertension is the medical term for high blood pressure. It occurs when the pressure the heart needs to pump blood is higher than normal. People who have untreated hypertension are more likely to suffer from heart disease and stroke. High blood pressure can be detected with regular blood pressure checks. The risk of heart disease and stroke can be reduced with treatment to control high blood pressure.

Tony Brown's Comments

The Programmed Afro- American.

This is a column about heroes, the people who don't come into your home on the evening news or even in your favorite Black weekly newspaper.

Quite frankly, I feel much better about them than I do about the demagogues who pass for "opinion leaders" and spend all of their time leading opinions and very little time creating solutions to the problems that they so eloquently identify.

And, in all honesty, some of them are professional demagogues willing to discuss, for example, Bernhard Goetz's racism, but avoiding Black-on Black crime altogether. And the demagogue accumulates credibility by attacking any Black who plays the rules of society well and succeeds as a "bourgeoisie sellout".

That's why I was elated when I met a young man, about 25, from Haiti who drove me to the airport in New York. He's been in this country for three years. When he arrived, he spoke no English and had no money to speak of.

And before he could programmed to fail, he got a job in a Mobil gas station and earned $30 a night. He saved his money and bought a $3,000 car which he got licensed as a "gypsy" cab for another $2,000 (including insurance). In night school, he studies TV repair and English, which he now speakes quite well.

On the $70 a day that he earns driving a cab, he has saved enough from his after-tax income to send for his wife and two daughters, whose pictures hang on his dashboard.

Meeting him and listening to his enthusiastic outlook was like a breath of fresh air. However, I immediately became afraid--afraid that he would soon be Americanized or programmed to fail by the demagogues. They will, of course, tell him that he cannot make it because he is Black.

This non-English speaking, Black immigrant saw opportunity and he is taking advantage of it and all of the racism in the world is not going to stop him. He is an inevitable success story.

His family will be stable and well provided for, his woman will be loved and protected, his children will have more oportunities than he did and will accomplish more. all of this will happen becasue no one has taught him that he needed White people's permission to succeed.

It may also, in part, explain why Black West Indians are better educated than White Americans and earn more than the average White American. They conspicuously outperform other Blacks.

Of course, a Black must be careful when he or she points to the opportunities in this country. The demagogues call this kind of thinking "reactionary" and apologizing for racism

I believe that a true Black "reactionary" is one who simply reacts to racism, but does nothing about it.

Racism, you see, is a myth. No group is superior to any other group. But it is possible that by manipulating the institutions in a society one group can be made to believe in its alleged inferiority.

Inferiority among Blacks is expressed when success is called a failure to Black, and Black failure becomes glorified behavior.

Thanks, Haiti for sending us one of your sons who succeeded before he was Americanized.

Acting On Civil Rights.

I was among the crown of several thousand people who recently marched across the Edmund Pettus Bridge to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the historic Selma-to-Montgomery civil rights march.

The contrast with the original march in 1965 was powerful. Then, state troopers mounted a violent attack on peaceful demonstrators. This time, an integregated police force stood by respectfully.

But I could not help thinking that for all the enormous progress that has been made since the March twenty years ago, much remains to be done in civil rights.

It's not enough simply to pass laws; they must be enforced as well. And despite massive changes in attitudes, discrimination still exists even where it is hidden behind other excuses -- such as the refusal to hire "unqualified" workers who happen to be black.

The persistence of discrimination, and the effects of past discriminatory patterns in housing, education and jobs, makes it necessary to pursue affirmative action policies.

Affirmatve action is still a controversial issue. It is often mis-named as "quotas" by opponents, although the only quota-based affirmative action plans are those that have been ordered by courts as remedies for proven illegal discriminatory practices.

Voluntary affirmative action programs have been adopted by many companies. Over two-thirds of all large corporations have special recruiting programs for minorities and most report they've changed their hiring selection procedures.

This has paid off with expanded opportunities for women and minorities. Much of the difference has been felt among those with the skills and educational background to take advantage of the affirmative efforts being made by employers.

Contrary to what its critics say, affirmative action never meant forcing companies to hire unqualified people. In the past highly qualified blacks were passed over while less qualified white males were hired.

Affirmative action programs also recognize an obligation to expand the pool of qualified minorities through outreach and training programs and be abandoning testing procedures that do not measure potential to do the job.

People forget that the civil rights marches of the '50s and '60s were for more than abstract rights. They were concerned with bringing blacks fully into the mainstream in all aspects of our society. Winning constitutional rights was not an end in itself -- it was also a means to achieve racial parity.

Despite the campaign against affirmative action it continues as a viable tool against discrimination. The argument that affirmative action is a race conscious contradiction in a color-blind society is ridiculous. The marchers at the Edmund Pettus Bridge twenty years ago weren't marching as color-blind individuals but as members of -or sympathizers with - a group blatantly discriminated against because of race.

To remedy that we need temporarily race-conscious policies to correct the mistakes of the past. Industry and the courts understand this. Apparently the Justice Department and the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, living in a fantasy-land of legal abstractions, do not.

In 1985, a major civil rights objective must be to guard against weakening the obligation to affirmative action, and to correct the loopholes drilled in its protections by passing the civil rights act now before Congress would ensure that all recipients of federal funds fall under the requirements of federal anti-discrimination laws.

New Middle East Policy Needed Now.

On Tuesday, March 12, with the whole world watching, the United States made another feeble and embarrassing attempt to justify its unsound Middle East policy, a bad policy that took a turn for the worst when Israel invaded Lebanon approximately three years ago.

It was on this recent Tuesday that Jean Kirkpatrick, U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, vetoed a U.N. Security Council resolution condemning "Israeli practices and measures against the vivilian population in southern Lebanon" in violation of international law. The veto was the only vote against the measure, which was supported by 11 of the Security Council's 15 members, including France, Britian, Australia and Denmark abstained.

Thus, the United States and Israel have come full circle in their Middle East misadventure. As Israel withdraws from Lebanon, the U.S. stands alone in support of the same policy of overkill that prompted the invasion in the first place.

After three years of occupying southern Lebanon, not only have peace and justice eluded Israel and its American ally, but American influence in the area has definitely eroded and Isarael has become less secure. In short, Israel's actions have turned out to be a fiasco and American policy has proved a disaster.

When Israel invaded Lebanon in the spring of 1982 in a movement called "Operation Peace for Galilee", it announced to the world that its aim was to eliminate the P.L.O.'s military threat to its northern borders. At that time, however, things were quite in the area and the PLO was observing the latest cease-fire that had been put in place a year earlier.

After much bloodshed and ill will, Israel did weaken the influence of Yasser Arafat and the Palkestinian moderates, but only temporarily. For Arafat's influence is stronger now than ever with the moderate Arab nations and his call for the creation of a separate Palestinian nation is more acceptable to the leaders of the Arab world. Additionally, Israel's actions have enraged and united the Moslem Shiite community, the dominant group in southern Lebanon, and they might prove to be more of a continuing threat to the security of Israel's northern border than the PLO was.

Isarael has also failed miserably in two of its other goals -- to install a sympathetic government in Lebanon and weaken Syria's presence and influence. When Bashir Gemayel was elected President of Lebanon in the late summer of 1982, it seemed that Israel would attain its Lebanon goal, for Bashir Gemayel was indeed a supporter of Israel. However, when Bashir was assassinated and his brother, Amin Gemayel, was elected, the Israeli influence began to diminish. Although the Gemayel government has never really gained control over all of the factions operating in Lebanon, one thing is clear, Israel has less influence with the central government than it had befor the invasion.

As the influence of the United States and Israel has diminished in Lebanon, the influence of Syria has increased. The Soviet Union has replaced all of the military equipment Syria lost during the early weeks of the Israeli invasion. Additionally, Syria still occupies the northern and eastern sections of Lebanon and will remain long after Israel has gone -- a condition Israeli and American policy makers were declaring unacceptable two years ago.

Most Americans, of course, are familiar with American's loss of influence and face in Lebanon: hundreds of lives snuffed out through bombings; the withdrawal of the "peace keeping" force; the kidnappings of American citizens; and the reductions in embassy staff.

Now, despite these things, the Reagan administration doesn't seem to realize that the only way to resolve the impasse in the Middle East is to bring the Palestine Liberation Organization into the negotiations. King Hussein of Jordan and President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt realize this and both have presented workable plans.

The time has come to recognize that the israeli and American failed policies of the past are not the way to peace in the Middle East.

US.. Canada Salmon Treaty Receives Concent Of Senate.

"We are embarking on a new era of cooperation that will insure the preservation of one of our most valued resources -- the Pacific salmon," said Senator Daniel J. Evans (R-WA) just before the U.S.-Canada Pacific Salmon Treaty received the unanimous consent of the Senate.

"For more than 15 years, representatives from the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, and Alaska, the federal governments and Treaty Indian tribes have met once or twice a year to argue over who took more of whose salmon," Evans explained. "All the while, the fishermen continued to fish and to fish more efficiently. The number of fishermen increased and the salmon's environment in the ocean and in the rivers deteriorated. The resource dwindled. Some stocks suffered so greatly their very existence is now in peril," he warned.

"Finally, after all these years, we have chosen to end our squabbling over what might well have been ;who would catch the last Pacific salmon. Rather, we have chosen to seize the single opportunity we may have to restore the great salmon resource of the Pacific Northwest."

The treaty establishes a Pacific Salmon Commission with four representatives from each country to allocate salmon catches between the United States and Canada. The commission will follow two basic principles in setting allocations. First, it will promote conservation of the resource by preventing overfishing. Second, it must insure that each country receives an amount equal to its production. The treaty also requires the commission to consider the potential for reducing interception, avoidance of economic and social dislocation and annual stock variations as it sets allocations.

"This is a fair and balanced treaty. It balances U.S. and Canadian interests as well as the interests of the many U.S. participants," Evans told his Senate colleagues. "No one got everything he wanted and everyone gave much. Some may benefit more than others, at least in the beginning. And the sacrifices may fall more heavily on some than on others. But I believe it is to the great credit of those who may be giving a little more and to those who must wait a little longer for the ultimate benefits of the treaty that they were willing to join in and support the treaty.

"Over the years, we have watched the salmon stocks decline. We knew enhancement programs would help restore these stocks. But enhancement proposals have not gone forward on either side of the border because there was no way to control interceptions and get back our investment," Evans explained before the vote. "This treaty will provide that control and ensure that return. We now can embark on major enhancement programs and strong rehabilitation measures that will restore the salmon stocks and assure their survival.

"There is real urgency to act on this treaty today. The salmon runs of this year already have started and we need to put together all our efforts in both the United States and Canada to hald the devastation of the runs, yet this year, and begin rebuilding."

Legislation to authorize U.S. participation in the treaty also passed the Senate today. It provides for the appointment of the four U.S. representatives to the commission and defines the responsibilities of the states, Indian tribes and regional fishery management councils involved in the Pacific Salmon fishery.

It also directs inter-agency cooperation toward implementation of the treaty, specifies prohibited acts and penalties, and sets general standards to guide U.S. actions following the treaty.

Evans pointed out that it took 15 years to negotiate this treaty but it moved through the Senate in record time. Signed by both countries on January 28, the treaty was received by the Senate on February 19. Treaty hearings were held on February 22 before Evans' Foreign Relations Committee and before Senator Slade Gorton's Commerce Committee (on implementing legislation) on March 1. The treaty was reported out of the Foreign Relations Committee on March 5, the same day the House of Representatives passed the implementing legislation.

Bill 863 Sponsored By Rep. George Walk-D . Puyallup Passes House.

Legislation to fund transportation improvements necessary for planned economic development has passed the House. Substitute House Bill 863, sponsored by Rep. George Walk, D-Puyallup, would provide another tool for attracting new industry to our state.

"State and local governments have a vital interest in promoting economic development in the state," said Walk, chariman of the House Transportation Committee. "New business development not only provides jobs for Washington residents, it also enhances our tax base."

Currently, the Community Economic Revitalization Board (CERB) evaluates local government applications for financial assistance with public works projects necessary for proposed economic development. SHB 863 would authorize CERB to include improvements to state highways as part of a planned economic development as long as the state Transportation Commission finds that the improvements meet safety and design criteria, don't impair the operational integrity of the transportation system, and have CERB approval. The Transportation Commission would then direct the state Department of Transportation to make the improvements in coordination with the applicant.

"This coordinated approach allows DOT to work with developers and local governments during the planning stages where they can catch and correct potential transportation problems, thus keeping the costs down," Walk said. "Local governments and developers alike will know their transportation concerns can be addressed quickly."

The measure sets aside $10 million within the state motor vehicle fund from the sale of bonds to fund highway improvements necessary for planned economic developments.

Baltimore Rededicates Courthouse In Name Of The Late Clarence Mitchell JR.

Mitchell Tells Chicago How Congress Treats Civil Rights Issu

By Albert Anderson

Chicago — Clarence M. Mitchell, congressional le and head of the Washington Bureau of the National Ass for the Advancement of Colored People, gave a revealin on Congress, its attitude on racial legislation and t covering of congressmen both from the South and th when he spoke Saturday evening at a dinner meeting cago's exclusive 40 Club.

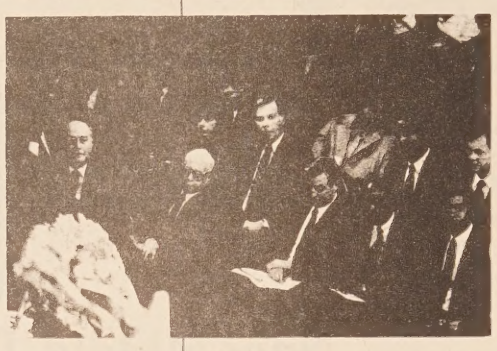
Mitchell whom many regard as the staunchest defe the race on the Washington scene, has been hailed for his courage, resourcefulness and superior strategy as he serves as a watch dog on civil rights legislation.

His appearance before congressional committees, his intelligent presentation of the Negro viewpoint in challenging the assertions of deep South representatives and of their northern congressional allies have won him the nickname of "The 8th Negro Con-

1963 — At the March on Washington, Mitchell talks with folk singer Mary Travers and a rabbi.

1978 — Mitchell and Lena Horne receive honorary doctorates at a Howard University graduation at which Senator Edward Kennedy speaks.

1980 — Mitchell receives the Medal of Freedom, the highest civilian honor, from President Carter.



1984 — Clarence Mitchell dies on March 18. A memorial service draws family, friends, co-workers, admirers from near and far including former Vice President Walter F. Mondale, New York Senator Daniel P. Moynihan and local officials.

BALTIMORE, MD. -- As a child growing up in border state Maryland, Clarence Mitchell, Jr., had to attend Jim Crow public schools in Baltimore city. Then he had to go outside the state to neighboring Pennsylvania to Lincoln University because the state-supported University of Maryland did not admit blacks.

A half century later, however, Baltimore made history by becoming on March 8 the first state in the nation to name its courthouse after a black person. In honoring Mr. Mitchell, the city did so not because of his race but because of his historical contributions as a civil rights lobbyist in Washington. The program was made more noteworthy by the presence of the city's and state's highest judicial and political officials.

Mr. Mitchell first joined the NAACP national staff in 1946 as labor secretary. Four years later, Walter White, executive secretary, promoted him to director of the NAACP Washington Bureau, a position he held until his retirement in 1978. During that time, he led the struggle for passage of the 1957, 1960 and 1964 Civil Rights Acts, the 1965 Voting Rights Act, the 1968 Fair Housing Act and all the other related measures that were designed to strengthen these measures.

With the assistance of Francis Pohlhaus, the bureau's legal counsel, he also desegregated the Federal bureaucracy in Washinton.

Bejamin L. Hooks, NAACP executive director, said that much of the steam generated by the civil rights marchers and demonstrators would have been dissipated and useless had Mr. Mitchell not fought for the passage of the civil rights laws. Despite progress, the fight is unfinished. So, "unless we complete the unfinished task, Mr. Mitchell will not rest though the courthouse be rededicated" in his name.

The keynote address was given by Joseph L. Rauh, a Washington lawyer who worked closely with Mr Mitchell through the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights for more than 30 years. Mr. Rauh was also a member of the NAACP National Board of directors.

Among the other speakers were Baltimore City Mayor Donald Schaefer, who led efforts to find a suitable monument to Mr. Mitchell following an editorial suggestion from The Sun, the state's leading newspaper. He was assisted by Joseph R. L. Sterne, The Sun's editorial page editor, who covered the struggle for civil rights legislation in Congress as a reporter.

Dead Line On Medicare Insurance.

March is the last month of the 1985 general enrollment period for people who failed to sign up for Medicare medical insurance at their first chance, Bill Ross, Social Security manager in Tacoma, said recently.

There is a general enrollment period during the first three months of each year. Also eligible to enroll at this time are people who once had medical insurance but who dropped this protection.

Medical insurance protection will start July 1, 1985, for people who sign up during the general enrollment period. The basic monthly premium for medical insurance is $15.50 for the period ending December 1985. The basic premium is increased by 10 percent for each year a person could have had this protection but did not.

The premium paid by those with medical insurance represents about one-fourth of the costs. The remaining amount is paid by the Federal Government from general revenues.

Medical insurance helps pay for doctors' services, outpatient hospital services, and many other items and services not covered by the hospital insurance part of medicare.

In general, after a person has had $75 in approved charges for covered medical expenses in a year--the annual deductible--medical insurance will pay 80 percent of the approved charges for any additional covered services a person has during the rest of the year.

Anyone who has a question about either part of Medicare --hospital insurance or medical insurance--can get the answer at the Tacoma Social Security office, located at 1208 South 10th Street. The telephone number is 1-800-562-6350. The people there have free leaflets which tell about the protection offered by Medicare.
